The Lee Kong Chian School of Business in SMU offers you an extraordinary educational experience in a city campus that is highly accessible, vibrant and fun. Its up-to-date, innovative curriculum is unsurpassed in responding quickly to changing business needs. Besides mainstream areas like finance, marketing, and organizational behaviour, you can major in quantitative finance and specialize in new tracks including wealth management, investment banking and international trading. Or take the challenge of a double-degree by combining Business Management with Accounting, Law, Economics, Social Science or Information Systems.

You will interact in small groups with faculty at the cutting edge of research and pick up quantitative and leadership skills the business world value. From your first year, you will get to hear and learn from CEOs every week. You can go on business study missions in Asia, Europe and North America and spend a semester at one of over 120 universities that have exchange agreements with SMU. If you are selected for the prestigious Lee Kong Chian Scholars Programme, you will have opportunities to shadow CEOs and carry out special projects in the region.

The Lee Kong Chian School of Business has the buzz and momentum to set you on a lifetime course of self-discovery and learning that is second to none. If you want an undergraduate education that gets you beyond business savvy to become movers and shakers, your choice is clear – SMU.
